

First week

After a lot of problems, trouble, and one night in a hotel in Amsterdam, I finally arrived in Curaçao on Tuesday.

It was also my Birthday therefore, it was an interesting experience arriving at an island, meeting new people, the jet lag, and everything else.

The next days we had an island tour by John (with a lot of beautiful beaches, views, information, ...), went Scuba Diving, had the first Papiamentu lesson, and went out.

On Sunday, we went to Kokomo Beach, and it was quite interesting to get there by public transport. We had to walk for 30 minutes beside a road, but we managed it and the beach was beautiful and worth the risk we took. Next week we will start working, and I am interested in how everything is going to be.
