

Week 4

On Tuesday, we learned how life is without electricity. There was a blackout on the whole island ... no one had electricity except for the shop, ... with a generator. Living for 4 hours in total without light, Wi-Fi, AC, cooking, and many more things. Luckily, we had again electricity when the sun went down.

During the week, I really enjoyed working with the kids because I adapted to the routine and can make some small decisions on my own. At the animal shelter, we are very welcomed as volunteers and our work is appreciated.

On Friday we visited Green Phenix a recycling company which is our new workplace until next week. It was interesting to see how people can make a small difference and try to be more responsible and do something for our environment.

It was also the last weekend of my roommate Margherita. Therefore, we went to a nice beach, and we had a tour by John to Watamula, the Tree of Life, and Seru Para Mira. The nature of Curaçao is varied – absolute stunning!
