

Week 5

... I am now officially more than 30 days on this island and the time is running. My roommate left, and it was time to meet new volunteers and start again from the beginning, it was also me a challenging week. But my routine helped me to come out of my thoughts and just to play with the kids for example Ludo or as we call it in Germany "Man, do not be upset" :) The kids are really cute and fun – in one picture you can see a boy wave to a truck and scream "Ayo truck!".

On the weekend we showed the new volunteers the island, and we went all the way to the West and stayed at Playa Kalki – a very beautiful but also tourist beach.

Every day may not be good but there is something good in every day :)
